On leaving the army David joined the Merchant Navy and enjoyed travelling the world for nine years. It was while working on the P & O liner Canberra that he met his wife. While at sea David did oil painting in the artificial light in his cabin but was never happy with the results. After leaving the navy David did a few paintings but then a new job, a house with a large garden and later a family filled his spare time. About 13 years ago David started painting again, this time with watercolours and found he loved the challenge of this medium. David uses a wet into wet technique and conveys a sense of peace and tranquility in his paintings which now not only hang in homes in this country but in mainland Europe and Australia. He has enjoyed giving talks and demonstrations to Womens Institutes and Schools on watercolour painting. David belongs to the S.A.A. (society for all artists). He is a member of Beechwood Artists, Shepperton Artists, The Watford Area Arts Forum and Hertfordshire Visual Arts Forum.
