At a Watford Camera Club meeting in January Ken Scott ARPS showed us the “One a day” pictures he had been taking for the last 2 years, later that evening one of our members had a bright idea, for a bit of fun why don't we try it, well not realizing the full implications some of us agreed.

We soon found that it's not as easy as it at first seems, a certain amount of discipline is required and of course you always need to find a subject, my first 15 pictures can be seen below and our groups pictures can be viewed on Flickr, just follow the link <http://www.flickr.com/photos/dailyshtoz/>

I'm not sure if I will carry on with this project as it takes a fair bit of time and will power, some re-shooting is often required as results are not always quiet what I had in mind, overall I think it's a good idea because it makes you plan your shots, take notice and appreciate more of the things around you, although I don't think it should be taken too seriously. Don Lanstone LRPS. 16th.
